The physical Stones of Power are covered each in its own section, but we will introduce here what can be considered a “starter set.” While it’s being called a starter “set” it is actually only one “stone,” a single Success Synergy Stone. If you feel good about it there is no reason to ever change it. A washer (properly imbued) is a completely appropriate Success Synergy Stone embodying all the attributes and powers of the later discussed three Stones of Power. It is looked at as a start because human nature being what it is there will be a natural tendency to “upgrade” to something prettier and more expensive, even if there is no indication that the new stones will work any better. Actually this last statement is not completely correct as belief (as explained in the book) is the crucial element and the better you feel about a stone the better it will work for you.

When you are asking from the universe keep in mind that you are asking from abundance and from a source where there is no shortage of anything you now possess, or would ever like to possess. The universe cannot be “bought” as you have nothing to offer it that it doesn’t already have an unlimited amount of. It therefore follows that anything that we humans consider precious, expensive or rare is only so to ourselves. In practical terms this means that a Stone of Power can be of any material, even the most common and everyday, as it is the power you imbue in it that is important. There is nothing intrinsically special about any stone that you might decide to adopt as yours. Again the exception is that certain materials have a “history” of being more powerful and if this is something that you believe then working to make it a Stone of Power for yourself is easier. This preexistent belief we can actually make very fruitful use of. If you have an object that has a family history, such as an heirloom that has been handed down, then this item is already very special to you and ideal to use as a Stone of Power. My own Philosopher’s Stone is a gold ring set with a green bloodstone that has been handed down to me from a long gone ancestor whose name is no longer remembered (but it did come to me as a special heirloom!) My Attractor Stone is a simple green and white irregularly shaped glass marble that has a monetary value of only pennies. A friend gave it to me after reading to a children’s group a story where the story’s hero a green stone was a special character booster. At the end of the story she gave each child a marble to use as in the story. She gave me one of the extra ones. That marble is invaluable to me as an Attractor Stone because it was lovingly given to me with the thoughts that it should bring me joy. The point here is that your Stones of Power are whatever you make special to you, material cost is completely immaterial.

The “starter set” is actually one simple metal washer on a string. Yes an inexpensive metal washer that can be found in any hardware store or department. We will dress it up a bit and give it importance so that it will very effectively do its job as a Stone of Power. A second benefit is that a washer is normally so simple and easy to find that you can start attracting Fabulous Fortune Forever to yourself immediately. Then if you do want something that you consider special to be one of your Stones of Power you are now not rushed in finding one, you can take the time to find something that you consider really appropriate for yourself.

Take the Success Synergy Stone, clean it; and you may even want to use a can of spray paint to color it gold, silver, white, etc to make it prettier (though this is not necessary.) Now with a fine tipped felt permanent marker you are going to write some Runes of Power on the washer to transform it into a special one for you. First, facing to the outer edge draw the Rune Wunjo: . This is the Rune of Bliss, the absence of suffering and sorrow, and represents the Philosopher’s Stone. To its left draw the Rune Perth: . This is the Rune of fortuitous happenings and so represents the Attractor Stone. To the right of Wunjo draw Ansuz: . Ansuz has a traditional meaning of messages from the gods and so represents the Diviner Stone. On the reverse side of the amulet you can write your name as a sign of ownership.

Now take some thread, or thin string, and thread it through the hole. Hold the two ends of the thread taut against the amulet and measure off four inches (about 10 cm). At this point tie a knot and cut off the excess thread. A knot to mark a four inch long pendulum is the recommendation of Max Freedom Long, the legendary student of the ancient Huna tradition who was also deeply involved in pendulum power.

Your SUCCESS SYNERGY STONE is now ready to use.

The first step in the amulet’s use is to empower it by consecrating it to yourself. Preferably use the Triumvirate Consecration ceremony in the Section I of the book but sincerely praying and affirming that the Success Synergy Stone will do its work for you will get you started. (Why this works is revealed under the heading of "Deep Secret" in Section I of the book but a warning: consecrating the stone to yourself with prayer and affirmation may turn out to be a long protracted effort before results are seen.) Here you are consecrating the roles of each attribute to yourself rather than separate stones.

To summarize and repeat again, there not anything intrinsic to any “stone” or other item that makes it special. It is your belief, as covered in the book, that uses Cosmic Energy, Chi, Prana, Kundalini or any other word that you are comfortable with to imbue an item, any item, with its special powers.
